Teddy Bear Toss

At a recent filming of Condors Street Smarts at Bakersfield College, one of the questions asked was, "What famous person was the teddy bear named after?" More than 80% of those questioned answered correctly saying, "Teddy Roosevelt." Perhaps because Roosevelt is the only famous person with the named Teddy - our apologies to musician Teddy Geiger - but no one could answer why.

The story behind the naming of the bear is known only to a select few, until now! In 1902, Theodore Roosevelt went on a hunting trip with several other prominent individuals. After an unsuccessful trip in which the 26th President was unable to bag a single animal, other members of the hunting party cornered a cub and tied the young bear to a tree. The men urged Roosevelt to shoot the bear and claim it as his kill. Roosevelt refused, deeming it unsportsmanlike.

Later that month a famous political cartoon drawn by Clifford Berryman depicting a disgusted Roosevelt refusing to shoot a cute cuddly bear appeared in the Washington Post. It was a man named Morris Michtom who saw the drawing of Roosevelt and the bear cub and was inspired to create a new toy. He created a little stuffed bear cub and put it in his shop window with a sign that read "Teddy's bear." The toys became immensely popular selling nearly one million bears with in a few years. Roosevelt even used one as his mascot in his successful bid for re-election.

Now we all have a little more unneeded knowledge stored away in the recesses of our mind. But far more important than the story of how the teddy bear got its name is that today, as you look down at that furry little thing you are about to hurl on the ice, think of how this cuddly little animal is going to brighten the day of a small child somewhere in Kern County.
